

China Set to Match Linen Is Valuable, Attractive Gift

"Dear Mme. Hall-Deane:—

"What would be nice to send to a friend by whom I have just been entertained most delightfully? I would like something that she could use when entertaining at cards, for she is very fond of bridge and often gives parties for small groups of friends.

"I might say beforehand that she has a lovely bridge service consisting of a luncheon cloth of yellow linen, with napkins to match. Both cloth and napkins are bordered with deep orange. I would like to have something that would correspond with this set, if possible. I am a member of the Service League.—Maymie."

You could get your friend a dozen amber glasses or a set of yellow luster China to go with the linen service, and either would be very much appreciated, without doubt. There come beautiful luncheon sets in both china and glass. The glass sets are plain, but those of china are decorated with conventionalized borders of oranges and green leaves or Chinese motifs.

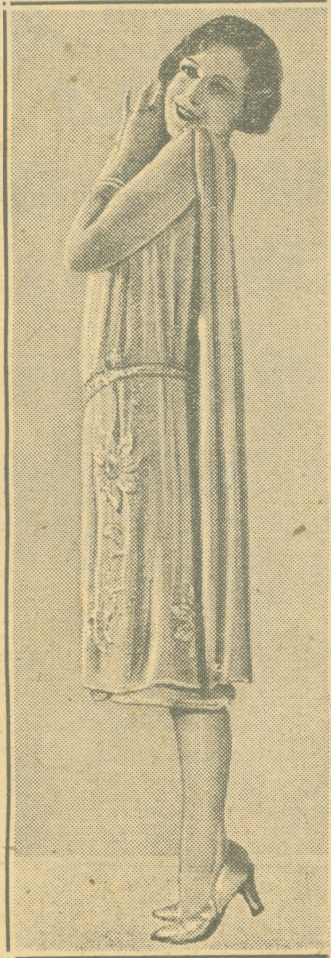

Also a sandwich dish in yellow with finish line of orange or black would be attractive. If you wish, the league will send you, upon receipt of a self-addressed envelope, the address of a gift shop where you will find any number of unusual and distinctive suggestions, and the articles are very reasonably priced.

Washing Fine China

Charlotte: With such a collection of exquisite wedding gifts, it is only natural that you would want to give your china the best care possible. For washing egg-shell or other very fine china, put a folded towel in the bottom of the pan. The purpose of it is to save breakage, both in turning about or by accidental dropping. Put in only as many dishes as the pan will hold comfortably; wash, rinse, drain and wipe, working quickly. Do not leave fine china soaking in the water. Add fresh hot water as needed, or fill the pan anew.

In clearing a table, take the things that are not greasy first, such as cups, fruit and cereal plates. All of the glassware should be washed before the china, and set away to air and cool. To clean steel knife blades easily and quickly, cut a large potato in half, dip the cut surface into bath-brick or powdered pumice stone or any good cleaning powder, lay the knife blade flat upon the table and rub the spotted surface hard with the potato. In a few seconds it should be bright. Wipe dry, wash, dry again and polish with a little dry cleansing powder.

Fifteen quarts of canned tomatoes for each person in the family will usually provide three servings each week during the eight months when fresh tomatoes are high.

SHOPS INDIVIDUAL

By MME. HALL-DEANE

Professional people whose business requires that their credentials to practice be hung in store or office may have their certificates beautifully framed at small expense during the next few weeks, for a certain frame and picture company in the downtown district is making them very special inducements. Private photographs and snapshots are also handsomely and artistically framed, to say nothing of the line of mirrors which this concern offers for sale.

The lovely ostrich fan has staged a comeback, forming a delightful complement to many of the newest evening ensembles.

Models in a combination of kids introduce chic autumn footwear to women of fashion. They are featured in a shop on the Avenue, where one-third the original value is taken off exclusive offerings. For $5.50 it is possible to secure footwear that will reflect credit upon the most fastidious of costumes. Even in the large shops, it is doubtful if one will be able to find finer bargains. If personal reply is requested, simply send stamped envelope.

A chic sports costume combines a semi-circular skirt of navy blue crepe de chine with blouse of natural kasha. The blouse is trimmed with the crepe and a large embroidered monogram. A simple hat of soft beige felt completes the outfit.

If the love of beads marks one as an Indian, certainly every woman of fashion this season will answer "Present" to the name. For beads are to be more fashionable than ever, especially beaded bags, which are featured in new shapes as well as new sizes. There is a shop on an important crosstown street where one may see bags that two weeks ago were quietly resting among their tissue paper wrappings in Paris. They are reasonably priced and beautiful. If an old bag is to be repaired, it may be taken to this same shop.

Among the prettiest shoes for daytime wear seen recently is a one-strap model of brown lizard-skin trimmed with narrow interlaced bands of black patent leather.

Youth! What a magic word, and how faithfully women strive to keep it. If the years are beginning to tell their tale in lines around the mouth and eyes and you have neglected to care for your skin because you believed that "soap and water was good enough," you will be interested in the method used by an expert who operates a charming studio on the Avenue. No operation is entailed and the price is only $5.

Mme. Hall-Deane will be glad to tell you the names of the shops referred to above. Write her, care of The GRAPHIC Service League, 25 City Hall Place.

Daddy Dusk The Sandman

Daddy Dusk was in a big hurry to get down to earth one afternoon, and as he was running along he came to a little boy who shouted: "Daddy Duskie, my name is George Ungard, I live in Brooklyn, and I want to go to Dreamland on a Dream Journey—will you take me?"

"How in this wide world did you get up here?" asked Daddy Dusk in great surprise. "You mustn't call me Daddy Duskie, for I am older than you are and I must ask you to respect me."

"I will call you Daddy Dusk, then," replied the boy. "I wish you would take me to Dreamland, where there is a great big giant and a lot of fairies and other beautiful beings. There must be a queen who sits on a golden throne. She must have a wand with a tiny diamond on the end of it and—"

"Wait a minute—wait a minute, let's go and see for ourselves," said Daddy Dusk. So they hopped into the airship and away they went and when they arrived at Dreamland they found everything except the giant.

The Queen of Dreamland took them on a journey with the airship—she sat in front of Daddy Dusk and pointed the way with her wand. It wasn't long, however, before George was fast asleep.

"I never take a boy through Dreamland that he doesn't go to sleep," said Daddy Dusk to the Queen, with a sigh.

If you want to go on a Dream Journey send your name and address to Daddy Dusk in care of The GRAPHIC.
